Overview

How much does LNG cost in Cambodia?

Our recent Institute for Energy Economics and Financial Analysis (IEEFA) study estimates that, at current prices, operating one 900MW, LNG-fired power plant at baseload levels could cost as much as KHR 2.95 trillion (USD 730 million) for the fuel alone. This exceeds Cambodia's entire 2022 coal import bill.

Why is Cambodia struggling to access affordable LNG supplies?

Other countries in the region, reliant on LNG imports, have seen global market disruptions impair energy security and affordability. As a potential new market entrant with limited bargaining power, uncertain gas requirements, and a lower demand profile, Cambodia could struggle to access affordable LNG supplies.

Should Cambodia integrate a 900 MW liquefied natural gas power plant?

Cambodia's plan to integrate a 900-megawatt (MW) liquefied natural gas (LNG)-fired power plant into its electricity system is a risky proposal. Other countries in the region, reliant on LNG imports, have seen global market disruptions impair energy security and affordability.

Should Cambodia scale its LNG project aspirations?

Cambodia must scale its LNG project aspirations so that LNG-fired power does not put the government's energy goals out of reach. Doing so would allow stakeholders to pursue LNG contracts and infrastructure plans that are best-suited to deliver Cambodia's energy objectives.

Does Cambodia need liquefied natural gas?

Cambodia does not produce its own gas, so the project requires the infrastructure to import the fuel in its cold, liquid form, then reheat it for combustion in the plant. A 2023 report by the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia (ERIA) advocates for liquefied natural gas (LNG) to play a major role in Cambodia's energy future.

Will Cambodia's largest power plant run on gas?

In October, the Cambodian conglomerate Royal Group broke ground on a 900-megawatt (MW) electricity generation project in the Botum Sakor district, on the country's south-western coast. If it's completed and running by 2027, the project would become the country's largest operational power plant, and its first to run on gas.
